Axis Acts to Thwart 'American' Landings in Spring

(By The Associated Press)
Germany has massed a striking force to 70 divisions—estimated at 1,250,000 troops—in the Balkan area to prevent possible Russian interference with her plans, a British military expert reported today.

While Greece stubbornly fought to stave off an Italian thrust into southeast Europe, the British expert asserted the German has steadily been moving troops into the Balkan trouble zone since France fell.

Singing their ancient war song, "we will throw them into the sea," thousands of Greek reservists rushed to bolster the Metaxas line in northern Greece today against the invasion of steadily strengthening Italian forces.

Conflicting reports gave an uncertain picture of the 24-hour-old fighting.

Diplomatic quarters in Rome said Italian troops had broken through to a point 10 miles beyond the border, striking toward Salonika.

Government circles in Athens said the Fascist invaders had been unable to drive back Greece's mountain defenders and that the conflict was "localizing along the border."

Reports that British troops landed on the island of Corfu, in the Ionian sea just off the border fighting scene, touched off a wave of enthusiasm in Athens.

Meanwhile, foreign circles in Rome forecast Axis pressure on Portugal Britain's friends, as the next step in a Rome-Berlin drive to gain control of the whole west coast of Europe and Africa—against the possibility that the United States might enter the war by next spring.

Germany already commands the Atlantic coast from Norway to Spain.

France has presumably yielded bases in French West Africa, in recent conversations between Premier Marshal Philippe Petain and Adolf Hitler.

Could Prevent 'Landing'

And, with the addition of Portugal giving the Axis a foothold in the Portuguese Azores and Cape Verde Islands, the Axis would present a hostile front on both continents to any British or American landing parties.

Speeding help by land, sea and air, under a pledge to aid Greece if attacked, the British were reported planning to establish an air base at Corfu so RAF warplanes could guard practically defenseless Greek cities and also be within striking distance of Italian objectives just across the Ionian sea.

In London, military informants reported Britain was hurrying "military assistance to Greece in the widest sense of the term," but said reports that British troops had landed on the Isle of Crete were probably circulated by "the enemy" to justify Italian action.

For the first time, the Italian and German public were permitted at least an inkling of information on the situation today.

Hitler's controlled press disclosed that Italy had served an ultimatum on Greece—the ultimatum was delivered at 3 a. m. yesterday (8 p. m., E. S. T., Sunday)—but kept Germany in the dark that a new battlefield for the Rome-Berlin Axis had actually developed.

In Rome, Mussolini's high command gave the first official announcement of the invasion in a terse communique devoting exactly 24 words to Italian troop action: "At dawn yesterday, our troops

Republicans Made Defense Possible, Willkie Declares

Presidential Nominee Says G.O.P. Insistence Kept Congress in Session to Pass Measures

Aboard Willkie train enroute to Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 29 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie, replying to President Roosevelt's New York address, declared today that Republican insistence on keeping Congress in session had made possible an extra seven billion dollars in defense appropriations.

The Republican presidential nominee, in a statement issued from his train, contended that Mr. Roosevelt had tried to get Congress to adjourn in June.

"Congress refused to go home," Willkie said, "because of the Republican insistence that it stay in session in view of the grave international situation."

"Since that time, Congress has made appropriations and contract authorizations of $12,140,000,000 for necessary but unfulfilled defense requirements. That is seven billion dollars more than was in the pending bills at the time he (Mr. Roosevelt) suggested they go home."

"If in June, Congress had obeyed the President's behest to adjourn, the United States would still have seven billion dollars less defense 'on order' than it now has."

"That demonstrates the unjustifiable nature of the third-term attempt."

Willkie's statement was regarded by members of his campaign staff as only a preliminary discussion of the President's address, which they said he probably would take up in detail today or tonight.

Speaks at Louisville

The Republican nominee referred briefly to the defense situation last night in a speech at Louisville, Ky., in extemporaneous remarks after concluding his prepared text, he said:

"The third term candidate may now call attention to the fact that some Republicans spoke against the defense program. The Republican party was the party of opposition, the Democratic party was in control and if it had had a leader who knew how to lead it, America today would not be defenseless."

"Why talk of this man as the peerless leader of democracy, who does not even know how to lead his own party?"

Willkie, whose schedule today took him into southern Ohio and West Virginia, received an ovation at Louisville from a crowd which filled the armory. His voice was husky, but it did not break in his half hour address.

He argued that a "New Deal party" had taken over the Democratic party.

Unlike Democratic Party

"It is unlike the Democratic party," he said, "its principles are as hostile to those of the Democratic party, and they are as

Mechanical Usage To Record Draft

Methods Not Used in 1917 Will Be Put Into Practice Today

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—Mechanical marvels which would have been mysteries to the doughboys of '17 are being used today to record the modernized draft lottery of 1940.

As each serial number is withdrawn from its capsule, it is slipped into a cardboard holder.

The holder is placed under the lens of an automatic camera which takes a picture, on a continuous strip of miniature film, of the number, a watch showing the exact second it was drawn, the date and the order in which it was drawn.

Next, the number is given to a tally clerk who vulcanizes it permanently to a cardboard form with a little electric iron, still in order in which it was drawn.

The cardboard forms, holding 250 numbers each, are photographed; printing plates are made from the photographs; and copies of the original and only master list of numbers will be printed and distributed to the 6,175 local draft boards, for use in determining the order of calling men to service.

Drawing of Draft Numbers to Decide Conscription List

Local Boards to Disregard Numbers Beyond Their Serial List, Will Take Next Figure Drawn

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—Drawing of the draft numbers in today's national lottery will determine the order in which men will be called to army service from every one of 6,175 local board areas, but the list of orders numbers in every area may be different.

Draft-age men can determine immediately their approximate order by consulting their newspapers to see where their serial numbers stand on the national list. However, they should consult the lists of their local boards later this week or next for their exact official order.

For instance, if number 258 is

Fogler and 'The Duke' Are Named in Superseding Indictments Before Supreme Court Justice

Indictments superseding those returned on October 11 were opened in Supreme Court before Justice Harry E. Schirick Monday afternoon charging Anthony Louis Fogler, alias Sam Griffo, and Dennis (The Duke) Quinn, alias Dionysius Relihan, alias Daniel Farrell, alias "Duke" Bradley, with conspiracy, forgery and grand larceny as a result of an attempt to extort $600 from E. V. Wilbern of Saugerties.

The new indictments which will replace those which were handed up by a grand jury in a special report to the court shortly after the two men were arrested, charge conspiracy from June 4 to October 10, the day of the arrests, as well as forgery and grand larceny, first degree, on October 10.

Both men pleaded innocent to the charges and had bail fixed.

Under indictment No. 2817 Fogler, alias Griffo, is charged with forgery, second degree, and grand larceny, second degree, on September 10. Joseph Forman appeared for Fogler and asked for 20 days' time to make further motion after a plea of not guilty had Joseph Schiskey of 47 Hudson street; Maurice Crookston of Wallkill; David Merwin of Pine Hill, and Floyd Eck of 276 Canal street, Ellenville, are the four Ulster county men whose number—158—was the first number drawn from the famous gold fish bowl in the master lottery in Washington this noon.

No. 2 Men
The four Ulster county men to be drawn second are:

Gilbert Schline of 91 Shufeldt street.

Richard P. Williams of 87 North Main street, Ellenville.

John Joseph King of Saugerties.

Lester Irving Dunham of New Paltz.

They had been given No. 192 by the local draft boards.

No. 3 Men

The four Ulster county men drawn third are:

James Becker of 333 Clinton avenue, city.

Kenneth S. DeGroot of Ardonia.

John T. Tiano of Route 1, Kingston.

Arthur Wilken of RFD, Ellenville.

Their number was 105.

In the drawing at Washington, 158 was drawn first, 192 was drawn second and 105 was drawn 19th.

In the World War draft the first number drawn in 1917 was 258, which was the number assigned by the local draft board to the late John Costello of Shufeldt street.

Fourth Man

Fourth man drawn is 2441, Walter B. Van Demark of 233 West Chestnut street.

Fifth man, 2563, is Herbert M. Levitas, 36 West Chester street.

Sixth man—188-Raymond Cwilt of 50 Tompkins street.

The 6th men drawn in the three other Ulster county districts are Samuel Aronowitz of 95 Center street, Ellenville; Joseph Rocco Cafferella of Milton, and Erwin Charles Alward of Ulster.

Ninth man—No. 2670, George S. Partlan of 92 Grand street, city.

There were no numbers 2914 or 2670 assigned in the three other county draft districts.

The following are among the first draft numbers in the sequence in which they affect the registrants under the Selective Service Law of the Kingston District, whose highest serial number is 2944.

Will Delete Numbers

Registrants in the other three draft boards in Ulster county in order to estimate the sequence in which they will be called for classification and examination will have to delete the numbers which are higher than the largest serial number assigned to potential draftees in their district.

The order of the draw in Washington now taking place will apply differently to the four districts in Ulster county, with the degree of variation depending largely upon the size of the draft district. Omissions, duplications, late registrations will in addition to the number of registrants cause further variations among the local districts.

The Freeman emphasizes that the list printed below is not official and gives only an approximate idea of the standing of registrants of the Kingston District in the lottery.

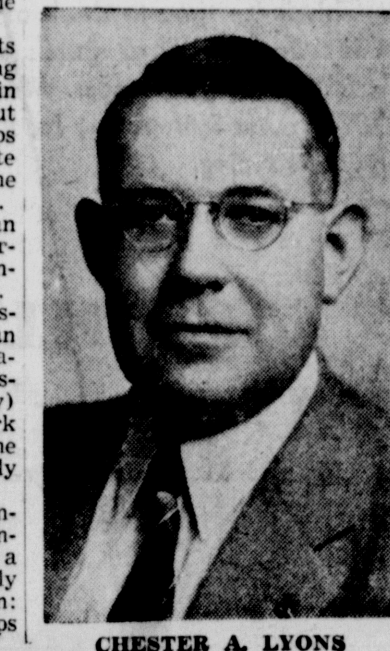

When the official lists have been compiled by the four districts in Ulster county and are available for publication, The Freeman will continue its public service by publishing the lists.

Sequence for the registrants in the Kingston district reprinted the time The Freeman went to press follows:

- 1—158
- 2—192

Chester A. Lyons Has Confidence of People

CHESTER A. LYONS

Chester A. Lyons, Republican candidate for County Treasurer, is a man in whom the people of Ulster county can place their utmost confidence. His record as a business man and as supervisor of the town of Olive testifies to this fact.

Born at Krumville in the town of Olive he has always been a resident of that town. His business ability is outstanding. Brought up on a farm, at the age of 21 he had established a general store at Krumville and was postmaster.

This business he continued to operate until 1922 when he sold his store and business and moved to Ashokan, where he now resides. At Ashokan, he erected a garage and in 1923 became the Chevrolet dealer in that community. Mr. Lyons continued the garage business until 1937 when the garage structure was destroyed by fire.

In 1939 Mr. Lyons decided to go

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

Man Shortage

New York—Beauticians look for a boom in the cosmetics and hair-do business as a result of the draft. With 800,000 men soon to be in the army, "the competition for men will be something fierce," Miss Gail Aronson told the New York State Hairdressers' and Cosmetologists' Association.

"Women are very loath to admit they would doll themselves up for a man," she added, "but it's all a very primitive business."

Reckless Galloping

New Albany, Ind.—When James

Bannister, 25, negro, was arrested for reckless driving—of a horse—he told the policeman: "This is an old fire horse in the habit of running fast."

He was fined $2 on his plea of guilty to galloping the horse down a main street.

Age of Innocence

Kansas City—The six-year-old was asked to fill out the questionnaire on a work of art like this: I am—"Lina."

I was made by—Manet.

In—France.

Innocently, she wrote: I am—Mary Jane Smith.

I was made by—God.

In—Heaven.

Almost Speechless

West Plains, Mo.—Congressman Dewey Short arrived at the courthouse to address a Republican rally, but he couldn't get in. The crowd was too big.

He obtained a ladder, climbed to the second story and gave the address.

Gog Gog

Omaha, Neb.—Police Lieut. Louis J. Worm thought his English springer spaniel pup, a blue ribbon winner in a recent dog show, had great potentialities as a retriever.

But Rex, in his first test, sallied forth after a pheasant and never came back.

Lieut. Worm hopes now that someone will retrieve Rex.

Sidney and the Bean Stalk

Bayard, Neb.—Sidney Reynolds, gentleman farmer, announces a yield of 555 beans.

Sidney, seven years old, planted two beans last spring. The stalks more than eight feet tall, produced the bumper crop.

War Wedding in Depot

Saskatoon—Wedding chimes and train bells mingled at the Canadian National Railways' new depot here recently when Edna Beveridge of Saskatoon, became the bride of J. A. Beattie, Royal Canadian Air Force mechanic.

The wedding was performed in the Canadian National passenger agent's office during the station stop of the "Continental Limited."

Beattie got off the train at 9:30 p. m.; greeted friends and wife-to-be; was married and boarded the train with his bride 10 minutes later.

Freight Claims Greatly Reduced

Montreal—Claims for loss and damage to freight carried over Canadian National Railways have been greatly reduced during the past 10 years. Until now the amount amounts to only 31 of one per cent of all freight traffic revenue. Canadian National System freight claims have been reduced 50 per cent in the decade.

Four Important Reasons Given for Electing Willkie

Editor, The Freeman:

I think there are a number of important reasons why the American people should elect Wendell Willkie in the coming election. I shall state four of them:

First, and chief, among these reasons is that a third-term precedent should most certainly not be set up at the present time; the world is at war almost solely because a few individuals have broken all of the traditional humanities of conduct, and the civilized rules of government. For the American people to ignore their previous judgment against any third-term for any President of the United States, would be almost like casting a vote in favor of incipient dictatorship.

The second reason why the voters should elect Mr. Willkie is because of the political party he represents; the election of the Republican candidates will keep alive the traditional two-party functioning of the thus far, free United States government. Our form of representative government has been kept free and elastic by this two-party system. Give each major party its chance. Change brooms when one becomes old, or worn, or has served its purpose. It is nonsense to say we shouldn't change parties in an emergency. Won't Willkie have the same wealth and patriotism behind him for the coming four years that Roosevelt would have? Now is the time to change; before we have a worse, or real, emergency.

The third reason—and a mighty good one it is—for electing Willkie is that Franklin D. Roosevelt is running against him. President Roosevelt and his administration should have proved to any observant American voter that the New Deal, during the past eight years has not only saddled a gigantic debt on the nation, but has failed hopelessly in solving the only major problem it had to face—depression and unemployment. There are today still 10 million men unemployed in the United States. And who would want to vote for a man, or a party, unable to do a single thing (with millions and billions of dollars at disposal) to improve the situation, save to send a country not fully prepared into a second world war? The war emergency must be met by Mr. Roosevelt or by Mr. Willkie, but the fact remains that the New Deal was extravagant in experiment, and it is sadly lacking now in election ammunition to shoot off about the success of its efforts at employing the unemployed!

I think there is a fourth reason for electing Mr. Willkie and his party colleagues. It is the memory of the Democratic national convention, one of the gravest mistakes that our President has made for it obviously was a Roosevelt convention, dominated to the bitter end by Roosevelt, and has already gone down in the books of American history as the most unrepresentative caucus ever pulled off in the name of a free democratic government by or for the people. Acute observers have been unable to reconcile the man who dominated and dictated this convention with the different sort of man whose amiable countenance and voice charm and beguile his followers everywhere. Yet it was this same Roosevelt whose gloved hand was felt through the soft henchman-Hopkins behind the scenes from that Chicago hotel sanctum—; Roosevelt, whose convention alone should be enough to warn all citizens to beware of giving this man further individual powers.

To sum up the four reasons—and more could be given—let's stick to our two-term limit, with Willkie; let's perpetuate the two-party system of representative government, with Willkie; let's elect a business man who can put the unemployed to work; Willkie; let's defeat this personal paradox who has had his chance and according to his own words, wants to retire to private life, and elect for our next President of the United States, a younger, middle-west, pioneer-minded American: Wendell L. Willkie!

Respectfully,
DONALD G. DOWNER.

'Y' Secretaries in China Request Transportation

Six Army and Navy Y.M.C.A. Secretaries on duty in China, according to letter received by Robert L. Sisson, general secretary of the local Y.M.C.A. Saturday cabled an urgent request to T. A. Rymer, head of the Army and Navy Department of the National Council Y.M.C.A., requesting transportation home for their wives and children. The cable stated the men would remain at their posts.

Four buildings are operated by the Army and Navy Y.M.C.A. at Shanghai, Chefoo, Hankow, and Peking to serve the men of the Asiatic Fleet and Fourth Marines.

"The task of providing a leisure-time activity program for the off-duty hours of service men now in China is essential at all times," stated Mr. Rymer, "but is an even greater necessity in the situation which now exists in the Far East. I am extremely gratified that our men are willing to make the personal sacrifice necessary to carry on our work in spite of the fact that it means a long separation for the fathers and husbands who are sending their families home."

Ax Over your Shoulder

By NORMAN CHANDLER
Chairman, Newspaper Publishers Committee

GET your chin up! Sure there are bears in the woods and bug-bears over the hill.

But you are a free man.

You can walk where you choose, pick out your own favorite pastime. You can be trusted with a pay check—trusted to buy wisely enough to make it last till next payday.

Did you ever think what makes you free? Our form of government? Democracy, where every man has a right to shoulder his ax and attack the wilderness to make it give up its rewards?

Correct. But when men set out to govern themselves—instead of leaving the job to a king or a dictator or a master—they must know how.

Knowing how to govern yourself means that you must know what is going on in your town, in your state, in the nation. And, also, it means that you must know how to safeguard what you earn, get good values for your money—for no man is truly free who is without money enough to buy the necessities of life.

And where can a man learn about what is going on?

In the newspaper, of course! Out of the news—the good, the bad.

the cruel and the just news—you and every free American get the facts by which you decide on the men and the laws and the customs that safeguard your freedom.

And don't forget that you also get your sense of values, your ability to pick out the necessities and satisfactions of life from the newspapers. The "ads" are signposts in the forest. They tell you exactly what you can get for your money and where you can get it.

Every shopper knows that his newspaper, which costs a few cents, often saves him dollars, saves time, saves disappointment.

Your newspaper guards you against controlled and misleading news, against false advertising. Perhaps it does this only because it is good business to do so.

But whatever the reason, so long as it continues to be an "American-style" paper, free from dictatorial control, you're safe.

A modern man with his newspaper in his hands is armed with what it takes to make his way in this modern world. He is today's pioneer, with today's keen-bladed ax on his shoulder.

NOTE: The purpose of these regular Tuesday institutional advertisements is to make American life and American business better. Your suggestions, criticisms or reactions will be appreciated by the Newspaper Publishers Committee and its chairman. Address the committee in care of the Business Office of this paper.

Ellenville Blacksmith

Ed Amthor Village Smithy Still on Job in Ellenville

Auto May Be Here to Stay Says Ed, but It'll Never Replace Old Dobbin Completely

Ellenville, Oct. 28.—The automobile may be here to stay but it will never replace the horse.

Not entirely, at least, because Ed Amthor—the last blacksmith in Ellenville—still has "enough business to keep pretty busy most of the time and make a good living."

"I've been in the trade nearly half a century," smiled Ed yesterday, "and, although I don't do as much work as I did years ago, I'm as busy as a bee during July and August. During those months farmers and other horse owners drive to my shop and the rest of the year I drive around the valley and pick up jobs here and there."

A hale and hearty man who looks you straight in the eye, he has a ready smile and enjoys reminiscing about the "good old days" when Dobbin ruled the road and had little competition from a new-fangled contraption on four wheels that snorted, clattered and all but blew up on the highway.

Curiously enough, Ed was not among the skeptics who shouted: "Why don'tcha git a horse?" at the bearded motorists in days of the automobile's debut. For Ed, it seems, has owned and driven cars almost a quarter of a century.

"I've found an automobile very helpful in my work," he explained. "Especially in winter months when I'm on the road drumming up business."

Mr. Amthor's modest shop has been a village landmark in Hickory street for years and adjoins his comfortable home.

He said he has "shod 'em standing up, laying down and about every way except hog-tying 'em."

"There was only one horse I didn't finish shoeing," he added. "That was a tough bronc-mustang. He kicked and reared and made an awful rumpus. I wanted to do the job, but the fellow who owned him said: 'No, Ed, I don't want to see you get killed' and led him away."

On one occasion Amthor was kicked in the forehead. He landed across the room, semi-conscious, and was taken to a doctor's office where several clamps were used to close a gaping cut. Unbashed, Ed went back to his shop a half hour later and shod the critter. He still carries the scar on his head—a badge of courage and devotion to his job.

Born in Montela 65 years ago, son of John and Barbara Anaple Amthor, he came to Ellenville as a young man and has been a blacksmith ever since.

A jack-of-all-trades, he has done varied jobs as a sideline to his chosen work and on one occasion built a house "from roof to cellar, stem to stern."

"The fellow I built that house for showed me the lot, told me what he wanted and I went ahead. The next time I saw him was when I handed him the key to the house—all ready to rent!"

Married to the former Nattie Perry, Ellenville, the Amthors have three children, and five grandchildren.

Defendants Enter Not Guilty Pleas On Sealed Writ

Chris J. Flanagan appeared for him and a plea of not guilty was entered. The act is alleged to have taken place on August 7. Bail was continued and the court allowed 20 days to make further motions.

Francis Amarello of 771 Broadway was charged with grand larceny, second degree, for the alleged taking of the Fred Markle car on September 17 and wrecking it on Green street. Michael Nardone appeared for him and he pleaded innocent. Bail was fixed at $1,000 and 20 days allowed to make further motions.

Alfred Ose of Tuckers Corners was arraigned on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated after having been convicted of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated. The act is alleged to have taken place October 9. George Rusk appeared for defendant and a plea of not guilty entered and twenty days allowed for further motions. Bail was set at $2,500.

Miller Arranged
Earl Miller of Kerhonkson was arraigned on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated. This was the third time Miller has been arrested for the same offense.

This charge grows out of a happening on July 24. LeRoy Lounsbury appeared for Miller. A plea of not guilty was entered. Mr. Haver told the court that Miller's case was unusual. In June he had pleaded guilty to a charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated as a second offender and County Judge Cook sentenced him but allowed him time to go out and earn money to pay his fine. It was while out under this condition that the present offense was committed. Miller was to pay his fine in September but the matter was adjourned until November. Miller was held in $500 bail by the justice in July and Mr. Haver asked that bail be increased to $2,500. The court allowed defendant to Wednesday to procure increased bail and allowed him to remain under the $500 bail until that time.

In discussing the matter of intoxicated drivers Justice Schirick called attention to the seriousness of the offense and said that apparently there was little attention being paid by some to sentences imposed on conviction. He said that such persons should be compelled to post higher bail when they came back into court again. While he was not saying they were guilty simply because they were charged with an offense he still felt substantial bail should be demanded and for that reason he was fixing bail in such cases at $2,500.

Frank J. Conforti of Highland was charged with sodomy alleged to have taken place on August 20 and on his plea of not guilty bail was fixed at $1,500. John Wadlin appeared for him.

Charles Greenberg of 1046 Teller avenue, Bronx, was charged with petit larceny on October 11 and October 13 for taking of automobile accessories from cars at the Vandemark garage at Accord. Herman Cohen appeared for him and a plea of not guilty was entered and bail was continued.

Raymond Minkler of Saugerties was arraigned on a charge of operation of a motor vehicle while intoxicated as a second offender. This act was committed on October 20. Joseph Campbell appeared for Minkler and a plea of innocent was interposed. Mr. Campbell asked for fixing of bail and Mr. Haver asked for $2,500. Mr. Campbell said the previous conviction had been in 1929 in justice's court by Mr. Haver informed the court that Minkler had been arrested in Greene county "only yesterday" on a charge of driving while intoxicated. While this charge had not been proven he asked for a substantial bail. The charge on which Minkler was arraigned Monday was made following an arrest by Sergeant James Cunningham and Trooper Keefe in town of Saugerties this month. Bail was set at $2,500. Court recessed until today.

Actual Status of Crete Is Unknown, but Its Position Is Vital

Greece Is Revealed As Pawn in Battle To Get Dardanelles

Occupation of Corfu Gives British Air Base for Attacks Upon Invaders of Greece

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The battle of Greece is still young and thus far there is no indication that the engagement— which in its essence is a duel between British naval strength and Axis land and aerial forces—has produced anything of marked advantage for either side.

This estimate admits the grimly realistic viewpoint that Greece is merely a pawn which is being driven by the Axis for strategic purposes. Despite the gallant resistance of her troops in the early fighting, it is likely she may have to succumb to the vastly superior strength of the invaders. Unfortunately for the Greeks, the British navy can't go ashore to defend its little ally.

Whether Greece is occupied by the Italians isn't the paramount issue, however.

What matters in the long run—both for Greece and for Britain—is that Mussolini's assault presumably is a part of the great offensive which the Axis projects against the British in the whole Mediterranean area. The main purpose of the Fascist attack is to secure air and naval bases for a drive against the Dardanelles in an effort to crash through the Turks into the Near East.

Crete Is Vital

This purpose will be stymied to large degree if the British occupy the strategic islands, particularly the big island of Crete, which form a barrier across the mouth of the Aegean sea and thus protect the Dardanelles and Turkey from Italian naval operations.

The British were reported to have occupied Crete at the outset but London military circles now have denied that troops have been put ashore. Whether this means that the British don't control Crete isn't made clear, but if their ships do not dominate this vital position it is more than passing strange.

One decided advantage the British do appear to have secured lies in their reported occupation of the large island of Corfu, which lies just off the Albanian-Greek coast. This affords an air-base not only for operations against the Italian troops attacking Greece, but also provides a vantage point for bombing nearby Italy.

In this connection it is important to note that the British are reported to have shipped large numbers of big bombing planes into Egypt recently. These will be available for operations throughout the eastern Mediterranean.

Greeks Start Well

The Greeks started off well, and Premier General Metaxas can be proud of the manner in which his famous kilted mountain troops stood off the Italians. One is reminded that among the British troops which the Germans disliked most to go up against in the World War were the Scots kilts.

The Germans used to call the Scotties devils from hell, and it must be admitted that they were a fearsome sight as they swarmed over the top for an attack in the grey dawn with their kilts flapping like wings. When you add the wailing scream and gurgle of a bagpipe, like a demon with blood in his throat, you really have something. I dare say the Greek kilts may give the same impression.

The immediate objective of the Italians is said to be of the port of Salonika. This city is the principal Aegean seaport of the Balkan Peninsula. It has a modernized harbor and is the terminus of four railways. Thus its strategic importance to both sides obviously is immense. Here is where British naval units can do yeoman's service in defense.

Turkey Sits Tight

Turkey still sits tight. She has given every indication that she will fight to the last ditch if directly attacked, but thus far hasn't shown her hands as regards assisting Greece. It is notable, however, that the Greek and Turkish leaders are keeping in close communication.

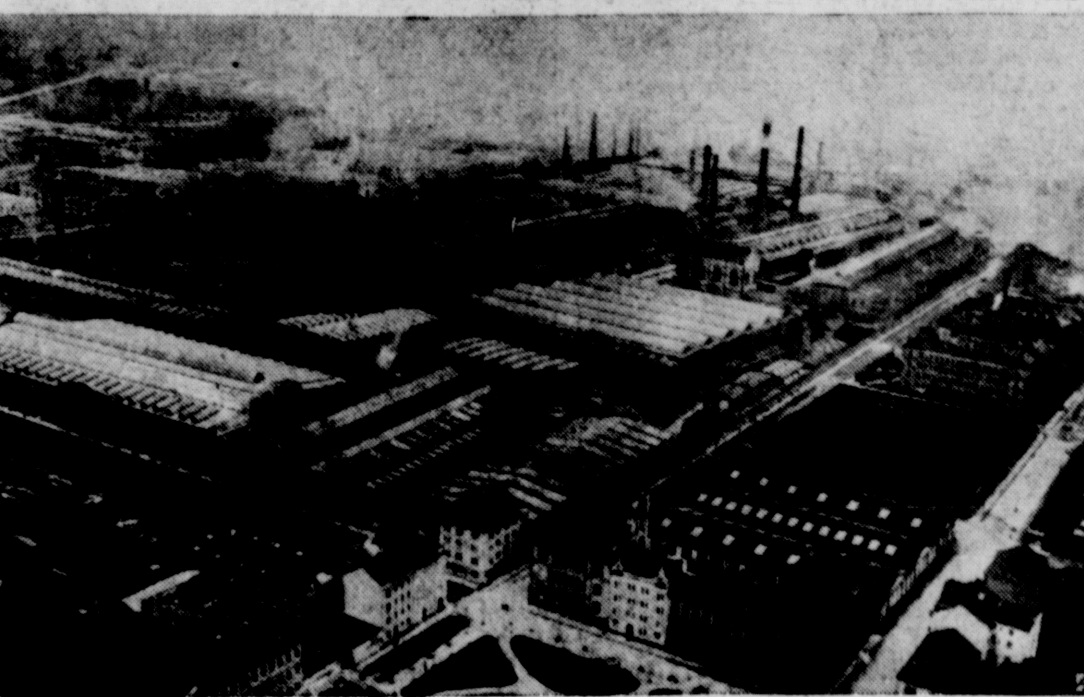

I should say that Turkey's attitude must depend largely on that of Moscow. If Bolshevik leader Stalin gives Turkey the nod to go ahead and join the Anglo-Greek allies, it is likely that the Turks will do so. If he turns thumbs down, Turkey might be expected to remain neutral unless in danger of direct attack herself.

Should the Turks decide to join the British, there can be small doubt that the Turkish land forces and the British naval strength would make a powerful combination, especially when operating from the protection of the Dardanelles. That undoubtedly is what the English are praying for, and should this develop I should say the position would be so favorable that the British would be glad this new theatre of war had opened up so as to have the Axis fighting on two fronts.

Many vegetables that can be stored, such as beets, cabbage, carrots, celery and onions, can be made into pickles and relishes late into the fall and winter. In her marketing, the housewife may well watch for seasonal reduction, for even those vegetables that are in market the year round have a season when they are at their best and are cheapest.

BRITISH BOMBERS LEAVE GREAT ARMS WORKS IN FLAMES

British bombers were reported in London to have bombed successfully and left in flames the huge Skoda armament works (above) at Pilsen, Bohemia, in what was once Czechoslovakia. Pilots reported they spent an hour searching before they found the great factory silhouetted against the snow-covered ground. Fires were "seen to be increasing in size and new outbreaks were gaining ground" as the British flew away, the pilots said.

National Council Y.M.C.A. Holding Annual Meeting

Obligations of the Y.M.C.A. to American draftees and to the three million prisoners of war in Europe are among the chief problems to be considered at the annual meeting of the National Council Y.M.C.A. now in session October 25, 26 and 27 at the Hotel William Penn, Pittsburgh, Penn. There 500 lay leaders and general secretaries attending his important conference.

Besides these two "inescapable obligations to youth"—duties to American young men in military training and prisoners of war—the Council will be asked to plan for two others: "its duties to its 1,600,000 members and provision for educational leadership in democracy in American communities," according to the agenda. Other business includes plans for the Centennial of the "Y" in 1944, raising building and equipment standards, work among students and work abroad.

Frank Porter Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, will address the Conference on "The Promise of Life for America's Young People," and Dr. John C. Shroeder of Yale Divinity School, will speak on "The Role of Christian Groups in the Present Situation."

Harper Sibley of Rochester and former president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, will preside at the dinner session Saturday evening on "The Youth of America and the World." Participating in this discussion on the outlook for young people around the world will be: S. C. Leung, national general secretary of the China Y.M.C.A.'s just arrived in America; Hugo Grassi, newly selected general secretary of the South American Federation of Y.M.C.A.'s; Thomas A. Ralph W. Harbison of Pittsburgh, Penn., is president of the National Council and John E. Manley, general secretary.

THE ROAD TO SHANI LUN

by Rita Moller Hanson

YESTERDAY: As in a dream, lovely Lynn Britton is riding across the Mongolian plain in a chariot of gold to a marriage with the Prince of Shani Lun. Although she is in love with Temu Darin, the Prince's faithful messenger, Lynn can not bring herself to dislike anything, even the odd situation in which she finds herself. She feels herself drawn forward by a mystic presence she cannot understand.

Chapter 29

Desert Attack

LYNN bit her lips and forced herself to speak. "Also my heart warms to you."

She felt a tremor in Temu's arm, but his face was expressionless, his eyes straight ahead like a soldier at attention. She scrutinized his profile with its strong nose and chin, the lean, bronze cheek that bore no scar.

"We'll soon be in Delun," he said through closed teeth.

She laughed and stepped away from his side. "Faithful subject! Incurable to the end!" Yet, a vague depression clutched at her heart. He seemed so confident that she belonged to the Prince.

Why, wondered her direct American mind. What queer, fatalistic twist gave him this iron control and determination?

Simultaneously they became aware of a dull, droning noise. They whirled and looked south, searching for the noise. Temu was the first to see the tiny black specks in the sky.

"They've come," he exclaimed. "Three bombing planes!"

The ships dipped low and circled over them. All the men in the camp were staring. Peggy had rushed out from her tent. The grazing horses began to mill with the herders trying to circle round them.

"You knew they were coming!" Lynn gasped. "What are they after?"

Temu watched the maneuvers in the air for a moment longer before he answered. "They're looking for a camel caravan bringing in contraband arms. They are Chinese government planes."

At that instant, the machines rose and straightened out in formation, headed east.

It was then Temu spied the caravan, lined up in several rows along the edge of a hill bordering the plain. They were just leaving camp for the night's march.

"There must be a thousand camels," muttered Temu, calling for his field-glasses.

The planes had evidently spotted their prey. They zoomed low over the files of loaded animals, and straightening out dropped their bombs at spaced intervals.

Bombs landed on the camels. Lynn was glad she had none; she could see enough as it was. Fire flashed, dust spouted! Ammunition exploded with staccato bursts of drumfire that drowned the screams of the men and camels.

A few of the animals stampeded and escaped. Some fell injured; many dropped dead. Others, loaded with explosives, disappeared into fragments of bone and skin and mist.

As the planes rose from the holocaust, the watchers noticed that one machine lagged behind. It seemed to try to climb, and then made a neat landing on the plain about a mile to the south.

Temu and certain of his men mounted the string of ponies that stood saddled day and night before a Mongol camp and raced down to the grounded flying machine, above which two ships circled like eagles watching their babe that has failed to fly.

Each other white-faced, looked at each other. Lynn felt half stunned. Everything had happened with such incredible speed. Peggy turned and entered the tent with faltering steps. Lynn would have followed her.

Dick Returns
SUDDENLY she stopped and stiffened. A cricket had chirped. Or had she heard a low whistle? She turned toward the direction from which the sound had come—the cliff side of the elevation on which she stood. A cautious head rose over the rim of the canyon wall. Lynn recognized her half-brother.

She could not believe her eyes. As she stood rooted to the spot he beckoned her to approach. Instead of obeying the summons she turned and entered the tent.

Lynn spoke as casually as she could to Peggy, who had dropped down on her bed. "I am going to stroll around a bit. I'll return later."

Lynn noted that the few men who had not followed Temu were busy about the campfires. The sentry who always guarded her tent sat cross-legged beside a pile of baggage eating his supper. She walked to the promontory rim and dropped over the edge to Dick's side. He was a trembling with excitement; the contagion spread to her.

"Thank God, you understood!" he whispered hoarsely. "What are you doing here?" she demanded.

"I've come to rescue you. If we can get away from here without being seen we're safe. I've a few men and horses hidden beyond a curve in the canyon. Not enough to attack this whitehorse troop but enough to take you from them. Come."

He saw her hesitate. "I always intended to rescue you, Lynn. Haven't time to explain now. Will you come?"

A moment's thought and she gave him her hand. They made breathless haste down the difficult cliff of dull, red clay, and, rounding the curve in the canyon, approached Dick's waiting men. A band of hard-riding Mongols who had had Russian military training, he explained. They hastily brought up horses for Dick and Lynn to mount.

The ride, too swift and desperate to allow for talking, did not end until late in the night when they approached the main body of Dick's camped force. Not a large one, Lynn noticed, in comparison with Temu Darin's whitehorse troop.

Dick Britton helped his sister from the saddle. "We'll go into my tent," he said, "while I have a shelter put up for you."

Lynn dropped on the bed and stretched out gratefully; the short stirrups saddle she had ridden had cramped uncomfortably.

Still keyed up with excitement Dick strolled about the tent eating his bowl of boiled mutton and rice. Presently Lynn sat up. "All right, Dick, what have you to say for yourself?"

He gave her a sharp look. "Tell me first how things have gone with you. Did you keep your mouth shut as I directed?"

She shrugged. "When they finally showed me that letter proving you had made a bargain with the Prince—"

"I can explain all that," he interrupted. "What else did they tell you?"

Lynn did not like to be questioned. She distrusted Dick thoroughly, but coming with him had seemed the better of two evils.

She saw he was trying to find out much that she knew before committing himself. Well, she knew very little, but she knew one thing that he did not—that the Prince was a white man—and she had no intention of telling her brother this. She also knew that a price had been set on Temu Darin's head and she now surmised that Dick was the man who had set the price.

New Conspiracy
"THEY told me that the Prince has enemies and dares not leave his own territory right now," she said, "and that Temu Darin was sent with Shercock before we were here, a military escort. Why were you so afraid of Temu Darin?"

It was a moment before Dick spoke, and then he answered carefully as if weighing each word. "Temu Darin's appearance at Pai Shu spoiled my plans. I could handle the priest, but not the soldier. I had to get out—go on ahead. I couldn't take you. I wasn't ready yet to show my hand, but I knew you'd be safe with them." He looked at her directly. "You were safe, weren't you?"

She nodded. "They've been decent to me, Dick, except that they're determined to take me to their Prince in Delun. I escaped once before and Temu got me back. Are we really safe from him here?"

"Perfectly safe, and we're going on soon." His face lighted up. "We're sitting pretty. We've got Temu Darin and the whitehorse troop out of Shani Lun and we're ahead of them. The Duke of Sachto and his followers are with us, body and soul. There are great things ahead, Lynn, if only you will play the game."

"Play the game! What do you mean?"

"With me to do the ground work and you to lend the prestige of the Goddess Tara, we can change the course of an empire." "Go on," she said passively.

"The man really entitled to rule Shani Lun is the Duke of Sachto, husband of the old Prince's only child. I'm backing him."

"What if I don't wish to join you in this scheme?"

His eyes hardened. "You'd be a fool to oppose me. I'm going through with this proposition. She noticed how much more aggressive he was, more sure of himself and less careful of her opinion than he had been in Pai Shu. "We have men in the forts and in strategic positions in the army. We have the Duchess of Sachto and her retainers in the palace."

"The people are ignorant. The resources of the country have never been developed; there are immense deposits of silver and gold and jade. There is copper and oil and a district of blue earth that may some day rival the diamond mines of Africa." He reached out and caught Lynn's hand.

"Lynn, we can make millions!" he said, and added, as he noticed the expression on her face, "we can also help the people, raise them from their filth and barbarism—civilize them."

She drew her hand from under his and hugged her knees. "Civilize them! Shercock says that slaves are freed only from within."

"Shercock! Dick gave a short exultant laugh. "Lynn, we surprised that old boy's camp this morning by the salt lake near Watch Tower Wells and carried him off leaving Gersing for Temu Darin to find tomorrow."

"Did you harm Gersing?" Lynn demanded.

"We did not. You couldn't hurt that old battle-axe anyhow. She and the little Chinese maid remained in the ruins of the camp where Temu could find them."

"And what's more, Dick went on. 'The joke of that bombing is not on us. The rebels paid us yesterday and took possession. Before this, they were after Temu Darin for the ransom we offered, now they'll be after him for information the Chinese government of this arms shipment.'"

"But, Dick, just what are your plans?"

He gave her a quick look from his cloudy eyes. "Do you really want to know?"

"I do," though she wondered how much would be false and how much true.

Rest While Working

In a little talk with Dr. Paul Roth of Battle Creek Sanitarium, he told us what, in his experience, is the best key to rest. Doctor Roth knows a great deal about the human machine. He is the inventor of the oxygen tent, and was a pioneer in the development of equipment for testing basal metabolism. So his advice is valuable.

Doctor Roth believes that the best key to rest is found by adding variety to one's activities—not in merely loafing and doing nothing. He says that the supreme secret of relaxation is in doing something one likes to do, in producing something one can be proud of—writing a poem, building a bookcase, planting a garden.

Let's take Doctor Roth's prescription and apply it to our daily tasks. By liking our work, by being proud of what we produce—we actually will learn to rest while working.

There can be a great thrill in running a business. We can be as proud of creating a quality product as in raising a perfect flower. And when we approach our work in this spirit we will find fun and relaxation in our jobs.

Miss Snook—Did Mr. Borer sing a popular song at the concert?
Miss Brook—Well, it had been popular before he sang it.

We know of only one thing worse than being unable to pay a debt and that is being unable to collect a debt owed to us.

Gadys—I shudder when I think of my thirtieth birthday.
Pamela—Why, dear, what happened?

Sometimes the car catches you. The old lady was puzzled by the network of tracks near the car barns. Spying a man in the middle of the tracks, she made her way over to him. He was bending over, concentrating on some heavy task, so she bent and enunciated into his ear:

Old Lady—Can you tell me where I can catch the Gravesend street car?
Workman—If you don't stand up pretty quick, lady, it's gonna slug you in the back.

To a Baby Boy
I'm wishing you luck, new baby boy. You really will need it, brother. You may grow up to look like your dad. Or have a voice like your mother! —Patricia Buchanan Mistress (engaging cook)—I'll be assisting you in the kitchen. Would you be wanting the same wages?

Cook—No, mum. Two dollars a week more.

If we cannot be friendly to people we can at least be courteous. This leaves the way open for future friendships.

Junior—Say, Daddy, I can do something you can't do.
Daddy—I don't believe it. What is it?
Junior—Grow.

Warning!
For every snow-white lie that oozes out of you, You're sure to need at least two more to make that one seem true. The first one will come so easily that you will scarcely dream. You'll need two more to cover it—and carry on your scheme. But soon you'll find you need four more to hide that second two; And before you know it, telling lies will be 'bout all you do. So when you plan to tell a fib think up a million more; Because, before you're through with it, you'll need good lies galore. —Lyla Myers.

She (haughtily)—Sir, my father is an English peer!
He—What of it? My father is an American doc.

Girl Pleads Innocent

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—Betty Klempa, 19-year-old maid accused of murder in the bludgeoned slaying of her employer, Mrs. Leah Rubin, pleaded innocent today when arraigned in Bronx County Court. She made her plea through her attorney, Mitchell J. Sherwin. Judge Harry Stackell did not set a date for trial. The girl appeared haggard and worn and apparently took little interest in the arraignment. She is specifically charged with slaying Mrs. Rubin Oct. 15 by striking her with a baseball bat and stabbing her 15 times. District Attorney attaches said the girl told them her employer had "nagged and reprimanded" her.

Kerhonkson Union School Activities

Halloween Party, Other Events Scheduled

For the third consecutive year the elementary grades will conduct a Halloween Party in the school gymnasium, Thursday afternoon, October 31. An unusual feature of this year's program will be the participation of parents and teachers in the planning of the event. As in previous years, those who attend will witness a colorful spectacle of unusual and original costumes. Other features will include grand march, games, songs and refreshments. All parents of the children in these grades are invited. The party is scheduled to begin at 2 p. m.

Members of the committee for the high school party are Muriel Barry, Anthony Wilk, Mrs. Archie Davis, Nat Zaifer, Eula Sahler and Martin Bronstein. At a recent meeting it was decided to combine a masquerade and old clothes parade. The program to which all high school parents are invited will include games, stunts, songs, an old-fashioned spelling bee, fortune telling, and possibly a Halloween play by the high school Dramatics Club. The decorations will follow a Halloween theme with witches, goblins, pumpkins and corn stalks. The program will get under way Thursday evening, October 31, at 8 p. m. This is the first enterprize which is being jointly planned and carried out by the Parent-Teacher Association, the high school faculty and representatives of the student body.

School Projects

Visitors to Mrs. Eck's room will be surprised to see a circus on display. The animals are made of pasteboard, but for all that, present a ferocious appearance. They were made by Sam Divine, Nancy Patruno, Bernard Hirschenson and Georgia Stiles and are the doghouse of an English project, "At the Circus."

The old question, "button, button, who has the button?" has at last been solved. Third and fourth grade pupils are working on a project called, "Button Pictures." They select the picture of an animal, bird or flower, outline it on a card and sew the buttons on accordingly. The cards are then finished with crayon drawings. Some of the pictures include birds, flowers and many others. These pupils are also working on a paper mache map of the United States which will show mountains, plains and indentations in relief.

Girls' Play Day

A number of Ellenville girls were guests of the Kerhonkson group Monday afternoon when they celebrated a series of playday activities of a friendly, competitive nature. Games included field hockey, soccer, touchball, dodge ball, Chinese relay and other games. A buffet supper was served in the auditorium. This was followed by a song led by Fay Axtell, director of music, and by social dancing. The program was sponsored by Physical Education Director John C. Braun, Muriel Barry and Adelaide Ott. The girls enjoyed themselves so thoroughly that they are already looking forward to a similar occasion.

Activities

Play is very important to boys and girls when they are attending school. Kerhonkson realizes this and has provided extensive play facilities around the school building. There are three large fields available for soccer, field hockey, softball and similar games. The two new tennis courts contain standard up-to-date equipment and are in excellent condition. Tether ball has met with such widespread approval on the part of the pupils that it has been necessary to set up five play courts.

Monday afternoon the Folk Dancing group met for the first time under the direction of Miss Ethel Long. The first dance they learned was the "Paw-Paw Patch," an old American folk dance. After this they swung through the rhythm, "Gustavus Adolphus," a Swedish folk dance. The group numbers 30 enthusiastic girls who will prepare to travel "around the world and dance" during the next six months.

Pupils Study Control of Colds

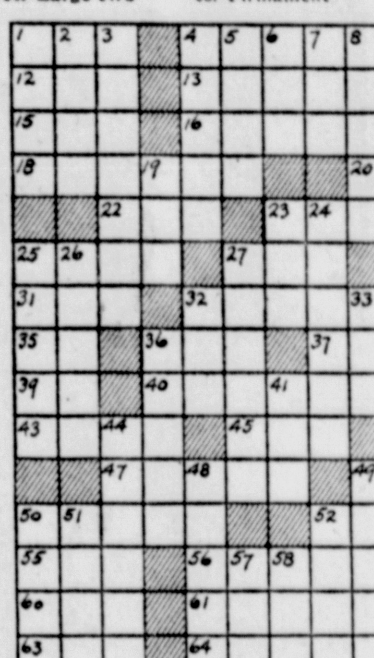

One of the most common causes of absence from school is the common cold. This week students throughout the school are using the morning homeroom period to discuss means of preventing and controlling this form of sickness. The discussion is based upon the booklet, "Colds, Influenza and Pneumonia," distributed by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and includes such topics as: "Why Colds Need Care," "How to Catch a Cold," "How to Take Care of a Cold," and "Cold Complications." Students are also studying heating conditions in the school room and in the home.

Literacy tests will be conducted in the high school Thursday, October 24 and Thursday, October 31, from 9 until 4 o'clock and Election Day from 9 until 6 p. m. This test is given to prospective voters in order to determine whether or not they are able to read. It is not a test of what the candidate knows. Full information may be obtained by calling the high school.

One day's pay has been donated by members of the staff of the Canadian National's Nova Scotia Hotel in Halifax to a fund for supplying socks and cigarettes to Canadian overseas soldiers who have no relatives in Canada.

Board of Health Discusses Milk, Dogs at Meeting

Milk and dogs were the principal subjects discussed at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Health Monday night at the city hall, and the discussion resulted in the board authorizing Attorney Louis G. Bruhn, a member of the board, to draft an amendment to the city's milk code.

The new amendment will provide that all milk dealers must display on their places of business and on their trucks and other vehicles used in delivering the milk to the consumer the name and address of the dealer and the number of his dealer's license.

Action on the amendment was the outcome of a discovery made by one of the board members that a milk truck delivering milk in the vicinity of his home bore no identifying mark to distinguish it from the trucks. It was brought out, however, that practically all of the milk trucks operated in Kingston have the dealer's name painted on the sides of the trucks.

Upset garbage pails and digging up of lawns and gardens is one result noticed of the lifting of the quarantine ban on dogs in Kingston. It was brought out at the meeting. One of the board members said that since the ban had been lifted he had qualified to pitch a regular game of baseball.

In order to chase the stray dogs out of his yard he had taken to hurling stones at them, and for that purpose had gathered a pile and placed them on his back porch so as to have them handy when needed.

He said he had no difficulty now in scaring the dogs out of his yard, and it also gave him a chance to exercise his throwing wing. There were 62 births and 52 deaths reported in Kingston during September according to reports filed with the board last night.

SALARY RAISE INSTEAD OF DIAMOND WRIST WATCH BEST REWARD, EMILY POST STILL INSISTS

But She Tells Correspondent That Personal Equation Must Decide Questions of Propriety

Several months ago—perhaps some of you may remember—an employer wanted to give his secretary a valuable diamond wrist watch in appreciation of the help she had been to his business during the five years she worked for him. I answered that I thought it would be better to increase her salary and let her buy her own watch.

Today a long letter from a reader softens her criticism by telling me, "I can't remember ever having disagreed with you before," and then adds, "but this time I think you somehow missed the point, which was his explanation that he knew she wanted a watch, and he wanted to give her a present. I think that there might have been an objection to the conspicuousness of a watch set in diamonds. But omitting these, why couldn't he have bought her a good watch, had it properly engraved with his appreciation of her services, and the date. Certainly this would have been ten times more gratifying to a conscientious employee, who had worked hard for her employer, than a bonus or a raise in salary. Do you still feel that it should have been the salary, and that the watch would have been unsuitable?"

I hope you will not resent this question, which is meant in the spirit of continuing a conversation, as would be possible if I had the privilege of talking with you personally.

In answer to this letter, let me say first, I love the conversation idea of being asked a further question about a question, but in reply I can only explain that all man and woman propriety questions are difficult to answer because of the personal equation. It seemed to me when I read the man's letter that a raise in salary was the most practical appreciation. It seemed to me that a diamond ornament gave a chance for gossip, whereas a raise in salary would be unquestioned reward for work.

Perhaps had I known them personally, I might have answered differently. If the secretary was well known to his family—if they perhaps helped him select the watch—this would have made it all right. I agree that the gold watch with engraved message on it would have been quite proper—but did she want a gold one? Wasn't it one with diamonds in its setting that she longed for? In any case, so far as she was concerned, a raise in salary was the best answer.

But thinking of it from his side, a raise (I now realize might have been impossible. If, for example, she is now getting a top salary, he might at the moment have been able to give her this present out of an especial fee or contract, and he might not feel able to add a definite increase to his pay roll. In other words, there are many angles, and each can somewhat change the practicability of the answer. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad, however, to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "Do You Know Your A B C's in Manners?" Be sure to send a three-cent, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post, in care of the Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. With a Good Vocabulary You Are Always Poised

Have Charming, Correct Speech

"I'm MOST scared to speak to these HERE people," she thinks, joining a group better educated than she. Will her speech betray her? Will her partner notice?

Only having a correct fluent vocabulary can save you from a sense of inferiority at such times. Knowing that it's right to say ALMOST, not MOST, that you shouldn't add HERE to these, you are freed from doubts that rob you of poise.

And you can easily check your slips. A little practice and you're soon saying "in REGARD to," "ought NOT" as automatically as you once said the crude "in REGARDS to," "HADN'T ought." At the same time check pronunciation errors. Say "Library," not "libRARY," "Athlete," not "ath-a-lete."

Officials Learn Little in Probe Of 9-W Accident

Further investigation by State Police has shed little more light on just what happened when the car driven by Cornyall Layton of Hunter and a trailer-truck from Newark driven by Dominick Tabacca of Lyons crashed on 9-W at Ulster Park shortly after one o'clock Monday morning.

Tabacca and his helper, Frank Titti, also of Lyons, were burned to death when they were pinned in the cab of their truck, after it had overturned along the side of the road and caught fire.

Layton, who is apparently the only eye-witness of the accident, could remember little more, he said, than that he saw the headlights of the approaching truck and that shortly afterward the crash came that overturned the truck and demolished his car.

Two girls riding with him, Anna and Grace Cloos of Hunter, were unable to give any information, it being stated that one of them was asleep and the other closely wrapped up because of the cold.

Following the accident, the arrival of the Port Jervis fire department, which put out the fire in the burning truck, all tended to obliterate road marks and add to the difficulty of determining the exact course of the two vehicles preceding the crash, but apparently the cars came together about in the center strip of the three-strip highway.

Layton and the two Cloos girls are still at the Kingston Hospital. Layton's condition was reported to be apparently fair this morning and that of the Misses Cloos fairly good.

Kingston Council On Aid to Britain Sends Off 27 Boxes

The local council of Bundles for Britain met Monday at the headquarters, 302 Fair street. It was reported that during the past month 27 boxes of used clothing containing over 13,000 garments and some surgical instruments had been sent to the national headquarters in New York city to be forwarded to England.

It was also decided at the meeting that the local unit will send $200 for the purchase of 20 cots for use in the air raid shelters. Each of the cots will be completely equipped with mattress, two woolen sheets, two woolen blankets and a pillow and pillow case.

Mrs. James Chase, chairman of the knitting reported that 167 completed knitted garments had been returned during the month and that 45 new knitters had become interested in the organization, making a total of 147 knitters in the Kingston unit.

An appeal has been received for afghans. Bundles for Britain has asked that anyone having odds and ends of yarn either bring them to the headquarters or knit them into nine-inch squares. The squares will be sewn together into afghans at the headquarters.

Paper-Making

The center around which paper making spins is the paper-making machine, says a writer in the Scientific American. It is a gigantic combination of intricate mechanisms which takes in raw stock at one end and spins forth paper at the other. A full-sized machine approaches 200 feet in length, weighs nearly a million pounds and costs in the neighborhood of a half million dollars. Because it is a grouping of machinery, one might say that there is a hazard every foot of the length. There are some 50 individual motors, about 25 pumps, thousands of feet of pipe and many miles of wire. Every unit must co-ordinate perfectly to deliver a product that is satisfactory.

Photographic Classifications

Because he is interested in humanity and likes to study it, Paul Antony of Santa Barbara, Calif., has accumulated a carefully annotated file of 20,000 photographs, taken on three continents and dealing with nearly every phase of human activity. He started by taking snapshots when he was nine years old. As a result of his studies, Antony believes all human beings can be classified in seven groups. They are the physical, emotional, cunning, balanced, mental, spiritual, and creative. The emotional and the cunning, which he considers outnumber all other types 9 to 1, he holds responsible for most of the world's woes.

Drawing of Draft Numbers to Decide Conscription List

the first drawn in the lottery today, a certain local board's order number list may begin:

"Serial No. 258 is Order No. 1."

If the second number drawn is 5,063, and the local board does not have that many registrants, it will disregard 5,063 and make the third number drawn its second order number.

Men whose numbers are among the first 650 drawn today in the lottery stand a good chance of being among the first 800,000 trainees who will be in the army before next July.

Those whose numbers are in the first 390 drawn are even more likely prospects, some calculators estimating that this narrower number range will supply all the men needed until next summer.

Strong Rayon Cord Tire Developed by Scientists

A rayon cord tire which is 3,000 per cent sturdier than standard cotton, has a higher tensile strength than structural steel, and ran 80,000 miles under conditions which destroyed an ordinary tire in 3,000 miles, was recently described to the American Chemical society.

William H. Bradshaw, director of rayon research for E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co., said a new rayon developed specifically for tires has produced "astounding results" in road tests involving millions of miles. On an overloaded, high-speed run in a hot country, Mr. Bradshaw said, the rayon tires gave 80,000 miles of service in circumstances that wore out ordinary tires after 3,000 miles. Having a higher tensile strength than structural steel, the new rayon is twice as strong as ordinary textile rayon.

The secret of its strength is its ability to maintain strength in high temperatures, being as safe from blow-outs at 105 degrees as the ordinary cotton cord tire is at 75 degrees.

The chief weakness of ordinary cotton fiber tires lies in the fact that in a single length of cotton cord "there are at least 60,000 cotton fibers," Mr. Bradshaw said, "and that means 60,000 breaks in the continuity of the structure. Strength decreases as the number of 'twists' goes up and the twist must be put in an attempt to overcome the inherent defect arising from these 60,000 breaks."

The rayon cord is a "continuous filament of rayon which completely eliminates this handicap and permits whatever combination of twists in singles, plys and cord may be desired to obtain the utmost in resistance to fatigue, rupture and other failure," he said.

British Flyer Downs Nazi Without Firing a Shot

LONDON.—The pilot of a British Hurricane fighter told of downing a German Messerschmitt 109 without firing a shot. In a recent Saturday's fighting over Kent, the British pilot had used all his ammunition shooting down two other planes.

"I saw a third 109 dive past," he said. "I followed him and chased him south. He wasn't over 100 feet high and when he throttled back I came up close beside him and pointed downward."

"The German turned away, so I carried out a dummy quarter attack and broke away very close to him. After that he landed his aircraft in a field at about 140 miles an hour."

"He got out, apparently unhurt, and as I circled around him, he put his hands over his head. . . then I threw him a package of cigarettes."

"I saw members of the Home Guard go into the field so I flew home."

Not Only Hears Crickets, But He's 'Got Them'

CLEVELAND.—H. O. Elias returned from a camping trip at a spot infested with crickets. He thought he heard them all the way home, and when they did not stop, he consulted his doctor.

"All the time," he said, "I seem to hear crickets. Maybe I'm just a little nervous."

The doctor took a silk handkerchief from the patient's coat—and with it a cricket.

Fresh Trouble in Balkans Affected Market Monday

Stocks opened easier Monday and lost some further ground in the forenoon, with the fresh trouble in the Balkans probably accounting for a moderate amount of selling, but there was some recovery later and net losses for the day were negligible. In the Dow-Jones averages the industrials closed at 131.77, a net loss for the day of .49 point. Rails dropped .19, to close at 8.45 and the utility average was down the same amount, closing at 22.33. There was little activity, volume for the day being but 470,640 shares.

In the list of 15 most active stocks but four showed gains, ranging from one-eighth to three-eighths, for the day. They were Interlake Iron, National Acme, Sonco-Vacuum and Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit. Standard Brands led the list and closed unchanged in turnover of 14,500 shares. Int. Tel. & Tel. also was unchanged, while the rest of the list showed minus marks.

National Acme made a new high for the year, as did American Locomotive, pfd. Jones & Laughlin, pfd. Savage Arms, Gimbel, pfd., Bohn Aluminum and A. O. Smith.

A number of favorable news items failed to make an evident impression on the market. Steel production in the U. S. is at an all-time high this week, the Iron & Steel Institute scheduling operations at 95.7 per cent capacity. At that rate input output for the week would be 1,452,587 net tons, large for any week in the history of the industry. In 1929 it was estimated that during brief periods production was at 100 per cent of theoretical capacity, but since that time capacity has been considerably increased. On the basis of a few reports received for the week ended October 26 indications are that carloadings had a better than seasonal rise and may have reached a new high for the year.

F. W. Dodge Corp. said that 1940 will prove the best year for construction since 1931, with residential buildings most active since 1929, which was a record year.

Commodities generally were steady Monday and the Dow-Jones index showed a slight gain for the day. Wheat advanced after early hesitancy and closed $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ higher. Cotton futures continued to decline, closing four to five points lower. Prices in Worth Street held firm as there was a fair business in cotton goods. In the raw sugar market offerings were made at 2.88 and 2.90 cents a pound. Demand for refined sugar was active and National Refining tonight will advance price to 4.35-cent basis, from 4.30 in territory Chicago west. Refiner announcements for November 15 as a deadline for delivery of sugar ordered at present prices. Rubber and hides were irregular.

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—Demand for steel and scattered industrial specialties contrasted with indifference in most other departments of today's stock market.

Metal issues edged upward in fairly lively dealings after a notably mixed start. Activity later slackened but prices generally were irregularly higher near the final hour. Transfers were at the rate of approximately 600,000 shares.

Bonds and commodities followed uneven trails.

Stocks getting up fractions to a point out at one time included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Western Union, Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Pennsylvania and Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit.

Behind occasionally were U. S. Gypsum, Union Carbide, Cerro de Pasco, International Nickel, N. Y. Central, American Can and Dow Chemical.

Support in the curb were American Cyanamid "B," Bath Iron Works, Electric Bond & Share and Niagara Hudson Power.

Writers Stick by Cornell and Irish in Gridiron Poll

Michigan Wolves Picked for Third Place; Teams to Meet Easy Foes in Next List of Games

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—It still is Cornell, Notre Dame and Michigan, in that order, when the country's sports editors get down to appraising the top-flight college football teams.

For the second straight week of the Associated Press ranking poll, these three head the list—Cornell, apparently already "over the hump" enroute to its second straight all-winning season, and Notre Dame and Michigan, with their toughest assignments to come.

This Saturday, however, all three should be safe. Cornell isn't likely to have much trouble with Columbia, despite Lion Coach Lou Little's crack that "we'll try not to turn it into a rout when we go to Ithaca." Notre Dame probably will spend most of its Saturday afternoon trying to hold down the score against Army, and Michigan will be safest of all. The Wolverines will rest for a week in preparation for Minnesota, Northwestern and Ohio State.

PUNTS AND PASSES

(By The Associated Press)

West Point, N. Y.—Although Army scouts report the Irish team which plays the army at New York Saturday is the best Notre Dame team in years, the cadets are sure to set one record for this long and colorful series. For the first time since army began to play Notre Dame, the cadets will face the Irish without having won at least two games earlier in the season. This year, army has beaten only Williams and tied Harvard, losing its other games.

Canton, Mo.—Charles (Chuck) Larson, halfback for little Culver-Stockton College, not only is one of the nation's leading football scorers, but he ranks high among the best ground-gainers. He has smashed through five opposing teams for 485 yards, averaging 6.8 yards on 71 tries. He has scored 56 points. Larson, who comes from Moline, Ill., will try to show the home folks how he does it Saturday when Culver-Stockton plays Macomb (Ill.) teachers.

Syracuse, N. Y.—The only blot on Georgetown's football record in three seasons was last year's 13-13 tie with Syracuse, and the Orange-men hope to do better Saturday by halting the Hoyas' 21-game undefeated streak. Syracuse accounted for one previously undefeated team, Columbia, last Saturday.

Chapel Hill, N. C.—Fordham's footballers might as well be warned now that they're in for a tough afternoon against North Carolina Saturday. The Tar Heels, who tied the Rams 0-0 in their 1938 meeting, never have lost a game in New York. They beat New York University four straight years, and since Ray Wolf has been their coach they have a record of eight victories and two ties in 14 intersectional games.

Lancaster, Pa.—Alex Schibano, star tackle of Franklin and Marshall's undefeated team, has a notable record for kicking points after touchdowns. During his three seasons of varsity competition, he hasn't missed a single conversion, booting 31 points.

Durham, N. C.—Playing Duke seems to bring out the best in a football team. At least, when Colgate met the Blue Devils, Carl Kinscherf did so well at fullback in place of the injured Joe Hoague that Joe now is having a hard time winning back his first-string job. There's a similar situation at Wake Forest, where Red Mayberry made his first appearance of the season against Duke last week after being laid up since September with a broken arm. J. Y. Pruitt performed so much better that he's still the No. 1 quarterback.

'Y' Swimmers Will Oppose Newburgh

Hilly City Club Took Last Meet, 35 to 32

The Kingston Y. M. C. A. swimming team will endeavor to break the Newburgh jinx Wednesday evening at 8:15 o'clock in the "Y" pool. Kingston dropped the last meet by 35-32.

Leading the local forces will be Remberto Junquera, Emil Talet, Joe Heidcamp, Fountain Slater, James Evory, Walt Himmelburg, Robert Michelson and Donald Anderson.

Bill Holmes will be the starter; Jack Erickson, clerk of course, and James Farrell, finish judge. Events listed are 40 yard freestyle; 40 yard backstroke; 40 yard breaststroke; 100 yard freestyle; 200 yard freestyle; diving, 120 medley relay and 160 freestyle relay.

Sports Roundup

New York, Oct. 29—Week's wash: Southern California borrowed Ernie Smith from the Green Bay Packers to teach the Trojans the famous T-formations of the Chicago Bears which Clark Shaughnessy uses at Stanford. (Shaughnessy, by the way, taught 'em to the Bears). . . . New York U. replaces Fordham, and Vanderbilt succeeds Clemson on the 1941 Tulane card. . . . Tom Yawkey, who craves Sid Hudson, is waving his check book under Clark Griffith's nose. . . . Coach Moss Simms of St. Mary's (Texas) threw 24 red, white and blue footballs into the stands after Sunday's game with Long Island U. . . . High rental demands of the Chicago stadium may keep Mike Jacobs out of there this winter.

Me and You Bofe, Boy
"Two Aggie linemen nominated for All-America births, screams a Texas paper. . . . Which leads Jerry Stephens to write from Moss Allen, Tex., that personally, he thinks that's carrying the All-America idea too far."

Pigskin Parade
Add casualties: Asa Bushnell, boss of eastern grid officials, broke an arm when he faw down and go boom while roller skating the other night. Ouch! . . . The Rev. Herman Page, an Episcopal minister, helps coach the football team of U. of Dayton, a Catholic college. . . . When Paul Menton correctly tabbed the Syracuse-Columbia upset, it gave our guess stars a 500 batting average for the season. . . . The Fond Du Lac (Wis.) Highs not only have an uncle and nephew on the roster, but they're coached by an Italian, and Quarterback Cherolis calls signals to colleagues Spallas, Kolobolas, Megellas, et al, in Greek. . . . One of the Michigan coaches says Tom Harmon does everything except grade the papers in the rhetoric department.

Verse of the People
Kenneth Dixon of the Carlisbad (N. M.) Current-Argus didn't write. . . . He telegraphed: "If someone doesn't tie a gag . . . On Eddie Brietz's rhyming way . . . Brietz'd better call the writer's hearse. . . . His column's gone from bad to verse terms in years." The cadets are sure to set one record for this long and colorful series. For the first time since army began to play Notre Dame, the cadets will face the Irish without having won at least two games earlier in the season. This year, army has beaten only Williams and tied Harvard, losing its other games.

Short Shorts
Until last Saturday, the Georgetown second team had outscored the varsity in every game this season. . . . Overlin-Belloise fight tip: Last three title events in the Garden saw three new champions crowned. . . . At Empire City the other day, Hank Greenberg passed up Detroit 11 to bet on Master Henry—the winnah. . . . Oh, oh. Here's another good guy gone wrong. Lou Brouillard, former welterweight and middleweight champion, has turned wrestler. . . . Kid McCoy, Detroit welter who takes on Pete De Ruza at White Plains tonight, has won 43 of 46 and looks like the goods.

Political Note
What with all this egg, apple and tomato tossing, isn't it reasonable to suppose that Mr. Willie will get the unanimous support of the National Association of Baseball Umpires?

Bob Stedler, Buffalo Evening News: "If Cleveland signs Rogers Hornsby as manager, those Indians will play ball—and it won't be spelled 'bawl.'"

Bears Look Like Best Pro Eleven
Chicago Gridders Humbled
Giants, 37-21
Chicago, Oct. 28 (AP)—All the returns are not in, but it begins to look as if the Chicago Bears might be football's "super team" after all.

The Bears commanded nationwide attention a month ago when they laid a resounding 41-10 haymaker on the far-famed championship Green Bay Packers. A subsequent setback at the hands of the under-rated Chicago Cardinals quickly deflated them.

However, since then the Bears, growing stronger each week, have won four in a row, the latest a decisive 37 to 21 triumph over the New York Giants Sunday.

Nobody has tabbed Washington as a "super team" but they keep right on winning, chalking up their sixth straight victory Sunday, maintaining an undefeated record with a 20-14 victory over Detroit.

Green Bay, playing at Milwaukee, breezed to a 24 to 3 victory over hapless Pittsburgh after being held to a 10-3 count for three periods. The Chicago Cardinals defeated Cleveland, 17 to 7.

Brooklyn moved ahead of New York in the eastern division with a 21 to 7 decision Saturday night over Philadelphia, the Eagles' seventh straight defeat.

Six Teams Drop
New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—Football followers found a lot of upsets in last Saturday's games, but 38 college teams, mostly small ones, still are asking where they took place. These 38 still are undefeated and untied after having played from three to six games apiece. There's one addition to the list, Pacific Lutheran College of Washington. The big fellows who dropped from the list over the week-end were Mississippi, which held the top spot a week ago, Texas, Pennsylvania, Rutgers, Fordham and Columbia.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

Chicago—Lem Franklin, 201, Cleveland, outpointed Elza Thompson, 231, Indianapolis (10).

EVEN TWO MEN FAIL TO STOP HARMON

Although two Pennsylvania players, Eugene Davis (13) and Cliff Engler (45), were trying their best to stop him, Michigan's great Tommy Harmon (left) picked up a couple of yards on this first quarter play at Ann Arbor. No. 63 with his headgear askew is Ralph Fritz of Michigan. Harmon carried the ball 28 times for a net gain of 142 yards. Michigan won 14-0.

Republicans Made Defense Possible, Willkie Declares

fatal to it, as the fungus is to the oak.
"It is this New Deal party that now makes its ultimate grasp for power—the repeal of the rule against the third term—that its reign may continue in perpetuity."
Willkie contended that the idea of limiting presidential service to two terms has become common law.

"The American people," he said, "know what it would mean to repeal the law against a third term. It means the destruction of our two party system. It means the complete mastery of us all by a single party, and that party under the orders of a single man."
The nominee declared that step by step "the New Deal has been leading us down the road toward complete state domination of our lives." If the anti-third term tradition is broken, he argued, "what is to prevent a fourth and fifth term?" Then he asked:
"And once we have gone that far, what is to prevent an ambitious man from dispensing with elections entirely?"

stationed in Albania crossed the Greek frontier and penetrated into enemy territory from various points. The advance is continuing."

Air Base Occupied

The Rome newspaper Il Piccolo, in a dispatch dated Athens, said the British occupied an air base at Crete several weeks ago and had also been equipping naval and air bases in the Greek Cyclades Islands, near the Italian Dodecanese Islands, in the eastern Mediterranean.

Government quarters in Athens voiced mounting confidence that the Greek army—estimated at 100,000 under arms with 500,000 reserves—would hold fast and perhaps even launch a counter-offensive into the Italian-dominated "puppet" state of Albania.

Following yesterday's assurances of "unlimited support" by King George VI and Prime Minister Winston Churchill, Britain's first lord of the admiralty, A. V. Alexander, announced today that the British navy's help for Greece "has already begun."

Soviet Russia, the big question-mark in the new conflict, appeared to be standing pat on her policy of watchful neutrality.

The Moscow press published lengthy but noncommittal reports from abroad on the spread of the war into the Balkans near Turkey, Russia's close friend.

Athens Has Quiet Night

Athens passed a quiet night, and so far no bombs had fallen into the ancient capital although anti-aircraft guns fired repeatedly yesterday at raiders overhead.

In Patras, third Greek city, air-raid casualties were listed at more than 100 killed and more than 100 wounded.

Reports that Turkey, a friend of both Greece and Britain, was moving units of her 2,000,000-strong army to the Greek frontier were unconfirmed, but the government newspaper at Ankara declared, "we prefer the hell of war to a dishonorable peace."

The German air force continued its steady assaults upon England during the night, but the attacks—directed mainly at London and the industrial midlands—were described by British sources as comparatively light, and the government indicated casualties were few.

British bombers, meanwhile, struck again at objectives in Germany and ports and airdromes in German-occupied territory on the continent.

German shipyards were the chief targets of "heavy and successful" night raids on Germany's biggest ports, the British air ministry reported, with RAF bombs falling on Kiel, Wilhelmshaven, Bremen, Hamburg, Emden and Cuxhaven.

In addition, the RAF struck at 19 air bases in Germany and in Nazi-occupied territory.

Held for Hearing

Jack A. Freese, Jr., Newburgh taxi driver, was held at the county jail last night pending a hearing today before Justice Seth C. Lippencott on a charge of public intoxication.

W. P. A. Is Solicited For Cash, Herzog Says

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 29 (AP)—Lester W. Herzog, upstate WPA administrator, said today WPA employees have been solicited for funds by the "National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government" to defeat a "third term."

Herzog asserted a form telegram of the "committee" not only "sought funds to be sent to Sumner Gerard, treasurer, but also urged the recipients to approach 12 others, men and women, for funds."

The administrator declared solicitation of WPA employees for political contributions is a "direct violation" of the emergency relief act and "will not be tolerated."

Herzog said he had written to Gerard advising solicitations be halted and that "any contributions be immediately returned."

Marcia now is Director of Fine Arts at the University of Virginia. Surviving him also is one son, David Jr., portrait painter.
